

Making Your Memory

You are to answer the following question in a formal essay:

- A. Describe how memory functions ^(1 page)
- B. How will you employ this knowledge to improve performance in your classes this year? ^(3-5 pages)

Category	4 Advanced	3 Proficient	2 Needs Improvement	1 Failing	Student Score
Unit Content: (All terms must be bolded and final tally given)	Comprehensive coverage of chapter contents (20+ terms or concepts used and explained)	Coverage of chapter contents (15+ terms or concepts used and explained)	Limited coverage of chapter contents (10+ terms or concepts used and explained)	Very limited coverage of chapter contents (5+ terms or concepts used and explained)	x7 _____
Explanation of Psychological Information	The concepts used are always thoroughly linked to a psychological explanation. (I.E. What about the function of memory makes this useful)	The concepts used are almost always linked to a psychological explanation.	The concepts used are usually linked to a psychological explanation.	The concepts used are rarely linked to a psychological explanation.	x6 _____
Application of Psychological Information	SPECIFIC applications for ALL of your classes are given	Specific applications for most of your classes are given	General applications for some of your classes are given	Vague applications for a few of your classes are given	x6 _____
Organization	SD3R Thesis: Organizes essay into appropriate chunks	SD3R Thesis: Organizes essay into appropriate chunks, but essay wanders a bit	No SD3R thesis, but some organization is present in the body of the essay	No thesis and no organization	x4 _____
Mechanics	Almost entirely free of grammatical errors. (Typed) Use of 'I' is permitted due to the nature of the assignment.	Mostly free of grammatical errors (Typed)	Sustained grammatical errors. (Typed)	Prevalent grammatical errors. (Hand written)	x2 _____